Are your wedding flowers in season?

Wedding flowers by season, in South Africa, are not as clearly defined. Our climate enjoys short intervals of Spring and Autumn that leads to glorious months of warm and cooler temperatures. Our country is blessed to enjoy a warmer climate all-year-round surrounding us with many more options in wedding flowers, available to South African brides.

We are truly living in an incredible country, rich not only in its diversity of nature and peoples but in its flowers too.

Today brides can enjoy the luxury of ordering flowers within a short period of time from overseas countries. Be sure your florist knows where to find what you love and place an order in time taking in to account that your flower budget will have to have room for courier costs or the fact that it will be more expensive on the flower market.

The only treasure you won't be able to find in any other country being unique to South Africa, is our very own Protea. Also known as the honeypot or the king sugar bush. The protea is only available for Spring and Summer weddings.

- Confirm your flower budget & where your money will come from.
- Gather ideas (make a pinterest board).
- Research flower seasonality, time to order and make arrangements.
- Ask loved ones or get events co-ordinator to share the workload.
- If you are fortunate to have a wedding planner - give her/him a story board of your ideas ensuring you are on the same page.
